

11-12 december 2019: Religions and Medical Ethics: Palliative Care and Elderly Mental Health

A two-day symposium jointly organized by the World Innovation Summit for Health (Qatar) and the Pontifical Academy for Life (Vatican City)

To be held at the Augustinianum Congress Centre, Via Paolo VI, Rome (adjacent to St. Peter's Square, Vatican City), 11-12 December, 2019

This special symposium examines the role that religion plays in providing holistic care in the context of medical ethics. By focusing on the intersection of belief-based and evidence-based approaches to care, speakers and participants will have the opportunity to highlight and explore the benefits of interdisciplinary and interfaith approaches to treating the body, mind and soul.
